The former Nathaniel Curry Estate...

Curry Manor was built in 1893 by the Curry Family of San Francisco in Nathaniel Curry's attempt to insulate his family from the rigors of "big city living." This Victorian mansion was built on 2,090 acres in the beautiful Garden Valley.

Nathaniel Curry passed away before the home was completed, but his wife and seven children chose to follow his wishes and relocated to their new home that was later known as Riversdale Farm, where they resided for the next fifty years. His will indicated that the estate would not be divided until the youngest child reached the age of 21, thus ensuring his family would stay together.

Curry Manor Residential Care Facility was established in 1982. Nathaniel Curry's wish to provide shelter for his family has now been extended to our community and their families.

Curry Manor blends the grace of a stately home with the thoughtful design of a modern care residence. Surrounded by lush gardens, walking paths, and peaceful views, this former mansion offers residents a safe, engaging, and beautiful place to call home.

DIGNITY, ENGAGEMENT, & BELONGING

At Curry Manor we promote independence, dignity and compassionate care with a focus on what residents are still able to do.

Our residents are able to go outdoors and walk along paved, secure walking paths within an orchard and farm setting.

We try hard to find out what makes each of our residents unique. Background information is collected from families prior to residents moving to our facility. We inquire into personal interests and design an individualized plan of care based on the resident's preferences and social needs.

Gardening is popular at Curry Manor.
